

JACK IS PAINTING HIS APARTMENT

It's Saturday morning, and Jack's very busy. He's painting his apartment today.

Right now, he's standing in the living room. He's wearing old jeans and a green T-shirt. He's moving the sofa and the chairs to the center of the room. He's also covering the floor with old newspapers.

Now, Jack's opening a big can of light blue paint. He's mixing the paint with a long wooden stick. He's listening to upbeat music on his radio, and he's singing along. He's feeling very happy.

His dog, Max, is sitting near the door. Max is watching Jack. He's tilting his head because he's curious.

Suddenly, the doorbell is ringing. Jack's opening the door. It's his friends, Lily and Tom. They're holding paintbrushes and rollers.

"We're helping you today!" Lily says with a smile.

Now, everyone's working hard. Lily's painting the corners of the room. Tom's painting the big wall, and Jack's taking a short break to drink some water. They're talking, laughing, and working together. The apartment is looking beautiful!
