A FRESH START IN SEATTLE

1. block	2. excited	3. exhausting	4. fridge	5. gas station	6. grass

7. location	8. lost	9. moving	10. overwhelming	11. route	12. welcoming

My name is Julian. Today is my first official day in Seattle and everything feels a bit overwhelming. I'm sitting in a small coffee shop near my new apartment, trying to plan my route. I'm drinking a latte and checking a map on my phone because I'm still a bit lost. My new office is in the city center, so I need to find the closest subway station.

The barista is very helpful. He's explaining that the closest subway station is just a few minutes away, right between the public library and a modern art museum. There's also a great supermarket behind the gas station on the next block. That's perfect news because my fridge is completely empty!

My apartment is small, but the location is excellent. On my way to the coffee shop, I saw a beautiful park. I'm planning to go there after work to sit on the grass and relax. Moving to a new place is exhausting, but the city feels welcoming. I'm looking at the people walking by, and for the first time, I'm excited to call this place home.

ANSWER THE QUESTIONS:

1. Where's Julian sitting right now?

2. What's Julian drinking?

3. Why is Julian checking a map on his phone?

4. Where's Julian's new office?

5. Where's the subway station?

6. What's behind the gas station on the next block?

7. Why is Julian's fridge empty?

8. Where's the beautiful park?

9. What's Julian doing at the end of the story?

10. How does Julian feel about the city at the end of the story?
